THE ISSAQUAH ALPINER June 13, 1980

TWO QUESTIONS: (1) IS YOUR MEMBERSHIP UP FOR RENEWAL? (2) HAVE YOU RENEWED? IF THE ANSWER TO (1) IS "YES," and to (2) IS "NO" -- THE NEXT YOU WILL HEAR FROM US MAY BE THE BOUND OF SILENCE. SEE PAGE 13

PRESIDENT'S (FOURTH) REPORT

By early June of this year of 1980, the diary of one local pedestrian recorded the flowering in the Issaquah Alps of 150 herbs, shrubs, and trees-136 identified and 14 defiant holdouts, these mostly exotics escaped from settlers' gardens or brought in by coalminers' boots and loggers' horses.

As does the flowering, the hiking goes on, to destinations become Traditional Favorites and to new delights constantly being found by intrepid explorers. In this period experimentation continues with the Young Family Specials, last summer's popular Weekday Evening Strolls are revived, and our Staff Geologist is conducting a field trip. The hikes are co-sponsored by Issaquah Parks and promoted or publicized by Bellevue Parks, Mercer Island Parks, Renton Parks, and Seattle Parks. King County Parks is involved as well. Joint hikes are done with Audubon, The Mountaineers, and Washington Native Plants Society. Close relationships continue with Washington Environmental Council, Washington Wilderness Alliance, Sierra Club, and Friends of the Earth.

The high point of single-hike attendance was April 26, when 200-odd members and friends of IATC and other clubs, together with public officials and representatives of newspapers, magazines, TV, stage, screen, and radio, set out from downtown Issaquah and accended to the Watershed, the Big Trees, Lake Tradition, Many Creek Valley, Poo Poo Point, West Tiger Railroad Grade, and West Tiger 3.

The gala was so much fun, and so well served club purposes, we're not waiting until spring for a repeat. MARK YOUR CALENDAR: OCTOBER 11-12, ISBAJUAH SALMON DAYS. With the co-sponsorship of the League of Women Voters, Lake Washington East, we'll have a booth in the middle of the fastivities, manned by volunteers telling the Alps story. Further, during the entire event we'll be periodically sending hike parties up to the Watershed, the lake, the mountain. PLAN TO ATTEND. PLAN TO HELP -- at the booth, on the trails. See the next Alviner for details.

Sooner than that there'll be a booth in downtown Issaquah, on the Fourth of July. Volunteras Wanted to spend an hour or two. Call Dave Kappler. 235-0741.

COMMUNITY PLANS

For several years the King County government, assisted by citizen committees, has been developing community plans to manage growth during the next decade or so. Three of these plans affect the Issaquah Alps.

East Lake Sammamish. Except for Grand Ridge and Lake Sammamish, this plan lies beyond confines of the Alps. However, because it was the first planning effort in our immediate area, the definition of issues and the drawing up of battlelines are of intense interest. Each of us should take the time to study and ponder. As individuals, we should speak our minds at the appropriate places and times.

Tahoma-Rayen Reights. The committee and supporting staff have been at work only since fall. The IATC definitely will contribute to the deliberations, inasmuch as this plan covers the eastern half of Squak and all of Tiger Mountain except the Raging River slopes. No matter where you live, if you hike Tiger and Squak you must concern yourself. Attend committee meetings. Speak up.

Newcastle. Matters are maturing toward the climax, if not quite yet the denouement. Soon you'll be informed of public meetings at which the draft plan (or plans) will be presented. When public input is sought, the IATO will be there (again). But so must you, as individuals, offering the benefit of your personal experience on trails of Cougar Mountain and Squak Mountain, Coal Greek and May Greek and Tibbetts Greek. In hiking the Cougar Wilderness and Gougar Ring, the Far Country and The Boulders and Lakemont Gorge, climbing Licorice Fern Wall and Surprise Wall and Wilderness Peak and Anti-Aircraft Peak, walking the High Marsh and Long Marsh and Lookout Marsh and Trog Swamp, you have become the experts on wildlands of Cougar Mountain. (Also of Bquak, doing those trails.)

Our plan for a Gougar Mountain Regional Park (see previous Alpiners) has been approved in principle by an overwhelming majority of the Newcastle Citizens Committee. Approval "in principle" is not the same as "in detail". And "approval" is not the same as "implementation." But if there is a will, there may be a way.

The news media -- and the IATC Telephone Tree -- will alert you. Get ready.

ISSAQUAN WATERSHED -- LAKE TRADITION PLATEAU

For several years the people and government of Issaquah have been discussing how best to manage this unique civic treasure, the plateau that for generations supplied the city with water.

The IATC entered in only recently when the City Council reopened the subject. Individually and in groups, we explored the Tradition Flateau more intensively than ever before, pausing to fully appreciate well-known beauties discovering new and unsuspected ones. The map in this issue of Alviner notes many: The Bprings, the Bearp Vista, the Big Trees, a bullteam skidroad, Lake Tradition, Round Lake, Rain Forest East, Round Swamp, West Tiger Caves, fradition Creek cataracts, sites of homesteads. Less easy to show on a map is the marvelously varied mix of forests: monster Douglas firs up to 1100 years old, the largest stand of old-growth Sitka spruce known so near Seattle the "climax" groves of alder-maple, the jungles of vine maple, the swamp forests of big cedar and huge cottonwood and festoons of moss, the coniferhardwood second-growth forests.

After extensive studies and workshops, the IATC task force concluded the financial returns from logging in the Watershed, whether by elearcutting or thinning, are not great enough to compensate for the loss of forest diversity. Alder-conversion, Douglas-fir and cedar plantations, and the like are excellent practices — but we think not for the Watershed, whose "highest and best use," in our opinion, is as a recreational wildland on city's edgeseveral minutes! walk from homes, from school classrooms, from the 210 bus stop. The map indicates our tentative proposals for a trail system. During our tours we saw great blue heron, water ouzels -- and a mature bald eagle. We saw trucks of coyote, deer, bear, elk -- and coupar. Don't see those in Woodland Park, except in the zoo.

On June 9 the IATC presented its position to an Issaquah City Council workshop. Council members surely would like to hear from the public, especially those of you who live in Issaquah. Talk to councilpeople you know, as well as members of Issaquah Park Board. If you know none, attend Council meetings or address a letter to President, Issaquah City Council, Issaquah, WA 98027. Send a copy to the Park Board.

URBAN TREE FARMS

Tiger Mountain. Ownership (inside the fringes): Weyerhaueser, about 10 sections (square miles), state Department of Natural Resources, managing common school lands and King County trust lands, about 10 sections; Manasha Moodenware, 1 section; Burlington-Northern, part of a section. Existing management of these lands: in large part, tree farming; in some part, chaos.

The time is now upon us when the IATC must begin to formalize its proposals for Tiger. The Tahoma-Raven Neights Plan pertains. So do the corporate plans of Weyerhaeuser and the attitudes of DNR. We need to pin down places where scenic and ecological values overshadow economic values: the Grand Canyon of Fifteenmile Creek, Beaver Valley, Silent Swamp, to cite merely three. We need to specify those very few trail routes we feel deserve "fixed" rather than "floatable" status: the West Tiger Railroad Grade, the Middle Tiger Railroad Grade, to name two.

However, we must also firm up our concept of European-style "urban tree farming," as distinguished from the tree-farming practiced on, and appropriate to, lands at a distance from urban areas. We must then talk to land managers and find out to what extent they can adjust standard practices to make room for non-timber values.

The IATC starts from the assumptions that the dominant use of most of Tiger Mountain in years ahead will be tree-farming and that hiking and horseriding and tree-farming can co-exist. There will be more logging, and more roads. However, there can also continue to be excellent walking, both on "floatable" trails (relocated around clearcuts) and on roads -- if these roads are not motorcycle raceways.

To be frank, the IATC feels very glum about logging where each and every new road removes a large area from the zone of peace and quiet, opens it to a sport so noisy, so violent, so destructive of plants and soils, it rules out calmer outdoor entertainments.

There must be limits on where machines can go. And how fast. And how noisily. And how much forest soil they can be permitted to erode, how many plant communities devastate. All existing and future roads must be studied to see which are appropriate for machines, which are not. Then there must be enforcement.

A dozen years ago the motorcycles on the Tiger Mountain Road mainly were ridden by folks who came for the beauties of the mountain and horizons, and they got along amiably with family-car sightseers and with hikers. But the Tiger Mountain Road now is so hoodlum a scene that hikers consider it suitable only for weekdays before school lets out. Never on Sundays, when the Steging area on Highway 18 is roaring.

Not hikers, not horse-riders, not scenery-seekers or sunset-watchers or family groups, driving the family car, can enjoy a motorcycle raceway. Something has gone terribly wrong on Tiger in the past dozen years. We know who is responsible but out of politeness will mention no names here.

IATC AND DNR

As you know, the IATC's objections to the Newcastle Timber Sale on Cougar Mountain were shared by King County, which filed suit; DNR withdrew the sale, temporarily.

The Stinger Timber Sale in Many Creek Valley of West Tiger was questioned by the City of Issaquah; DNR withdrew the sale pending preparation of an environmental impact statement.

The IATC hopes that relations with DNR can return to the friendly atmosphere prevailing before the shouting and suing began last fall. Talking is much easier on the ears and nerves and pocketbook.

However, whatever the situation in the Issaquah Alps, and whether or not the present batch of controversies lead to establishment of a King County forest Service to manage county-owned trust lands, the statewide impasse remains. DNR interprets its legislative mandate differently from citizen groups, and the courts must decide (if the people do not, via the ballot groups, and the courts must decide (if the people do not, via the ballot box). Contributions still are urgently needed to support the Washington box). Contributions still are urgently needed to support the Pending lawsuit, environmental Council and Seattle Audubon Society in the pending lawsuit, esplaintiff Trees.

Contributions are tax-deductible. Mail checks to:

MEETINGS

Members of IATC have shown a marked preference for meeting on trails rather than in rooms. Nevertheless, to provide an opportunity for folks to speak in high councils, major meetings are hereby announced. Come and listen, or come and talk.

All these meetings are at Newbort Way Library, 14250 SE Newport Way, Bellevue.

From the Publicity Chairwoman

*Bave My Sanity

HELP!!! I'm drowning in a sea of paperwork. I need people who are willing to do one or two things each. No pressure, nothing overwhelmin Some of the jobs are unglamorous, such as typing envelopes, lists, or smooth drafts of my crummily-typed commentaries; other tasks are only for the brave (or foolhardy), such as calling public officials, TV and newspaper reporters, and public speaking.

You may have noticed in the President's Mesnage, the Issaquah Alps Trat Club is repeating the Public Officials Awareness Hike. It's scheduled for Saturday of Salmon Days, October 4. We'll have hourly hikes up the scarp, maybe longer treks. The Publicity Committee needs lots of helps for Salmon Days and other tasks at other times.

Here's a list of jobs. Ploase call me if you could do one of these fo: the Greater Glory of our illustrious Issaquah Alps.

Phoning: Other members to lead a hike on Salmon Days; Public Officials -- follow-up on written invite; (If someone knows one of this species personally, please let me know.)

Newspepers, TV, radio for publicity re hikes in general. (Again, does anyone know anybody at KOMO, KIRO, P.I, etc.7)

Park departments, planning commissions -- for publicity re hikes in general.

Smooth copies of press releases, letters of Typing: invitation, addressing envelopes, hiking information. I will compose the rough draft for press releases and letters. Is there another soul (s) out there willing and/or able to compose marvelous communiques for the Fourth Estate?

Speakers' Bureaus: We are developing slide shows about the IATC Cougar Mt. Park and Tradition Lake Watershed proposals. Scripts will be provided. We hope to tour the area peddling our proposals to planning commissions, city councils, community clubs, and other organizations -- anybody who will listen.

If 30 of our members do one thing each, I can spend more time outside hiking and less time inside on the phone or at this *&L$ tuperighter.

Wednesday, July 2

SQUAK MOUNTAIN VIA THRUSH GAP (Class 3)

Meeting place: Issaquah Park & Ride, 8:30 a.m.

Leader: Jim and Goergia Klotz. 747-4141

This is the lovely woods-trail route up from the south side.

WEST TIGER CAVES (Class 2+)

Wednesday evening, July 2

Meeting place: Issaquah Park & Ride, 6:30 p.m.

Leader: Tim O'Brian, 392-7365

For months the O'Brians have been pursuing the elusive West Tiger Caves and now believe they've found the two largest. One is a walk-in (no crawling) type -- to a room that would hold a hundred people. Bring flashlights.

HIGH POINT TO ISSAQUAH (Class 1)

Thursday, July 3

Meeting place: Issaquah Park & Ride, 10 a.m.

Leader: Ann Fletcher, 235-0741

Along East Fork Issaquah Creek on the old rail trail.

WEST TIGER 3-CITY LIGHTS AND FIREWORKS SPECIAL (Class 3+ -- Backpack) Friday-Saturday, July 4-5 Heeting place: Issaquah Park & Ride, 12:30 p.m., Friday Leader: Harvey Manning, SH 6-1017 Our first trip here was so grand we're returning -- this time not only for the lights but the fireworks shows in the lowlands. No experience or fancy gear needed -- just a blanket and a sack of sandwiches -- but also bring liquids from home, since the creeks may be low or dry. Plenty of liquids. We'll ascend leisurely Friday. Those with tents may pitch them near the summit. The leader will just lay out on the rocks in a horseblanket, maybe wrapped in a plastic tablecloth if there's rain. If you plan to cook, bring a stove. No wood fires. Enjoy the dazzling sunset over the Olympics, then the billion-eyed megalopolis, and the rockets' red glare and bombs bursting in air.

THE BOULDERS (COUGAR MOUNTAIN) (Class 2)
